

Clip: the owner's review screen

Clip runs on the owner's private server and is opened only by the owner. Each clip it has cut from permitted footage waits here for review. Nothing is uploaded from this screen until the owner approves a clip.

Clip

the clipping studio · Clip cuts permitted videos into captioned shorts · Spotter, the research assistant, finds who and what is trending

VIDEOS

1

1 done

CLIPS READY

4

waiting for you

SPENT TODAY

$0.00

of $0.25

YOUTUBE UNITS

0

of 3000 today · free

CLIPS

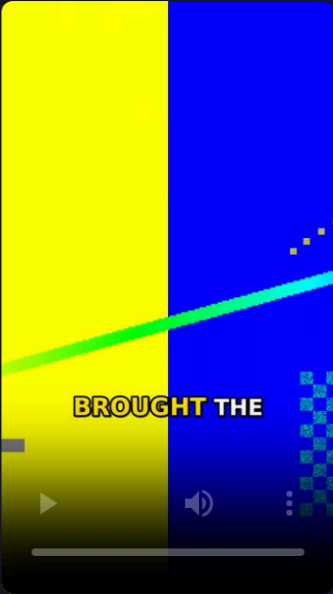

ONCE, WHILE

CLIP #1 · 63/100

LIBRIVOX 0:38-1:15

makes sense without the video before it · strong opening line · ends cleanly

BROUGHT THE

CLIP #2 · 61/100

LIBRIVOX 2:57-3:30

makes sense without the video before it · ends cleanly on a pause · comfortable

STOPPED AT A

CLIP #3 · 61/100

LIBRIVOX 1:17-1:39

makes sense without the video before it · ends cleanly on a pause · comfortable

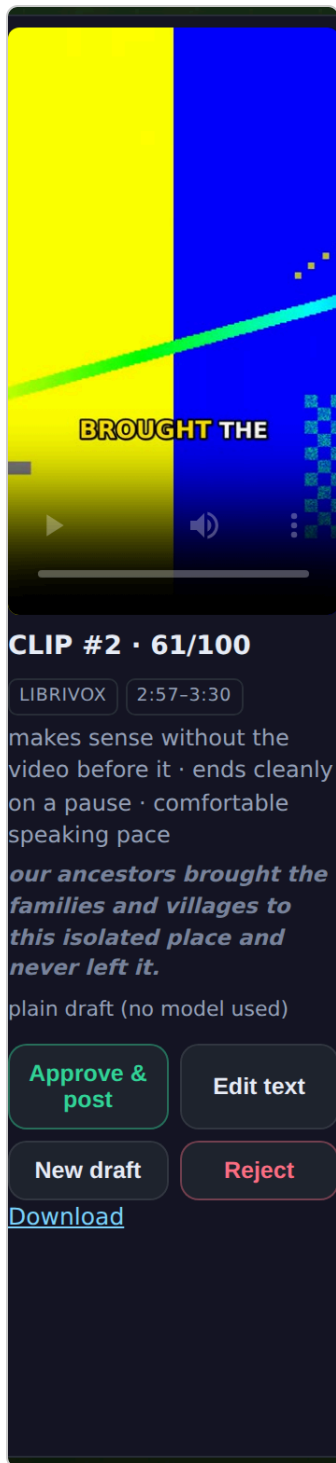

PEACH BLOSSOM

CLIP #4 · 54/100

LIBRIVOX 0:01-0:38

makes sense without the video before it · ends cleanly on a pause · close to the

Upload interface: approving one clip

Each clip shows the title, caption and hashtags it would be posted with. The owner can edit them (Edit text), ask for a new draft, or reject the clip. The video is uploaded to the owner's own YouTube channel with those words (videos.insert) only when the owner taps Approve & post and confirms. Clip uploads at most 6 videos a day.

Where it lives

Clip's studio is one building in the owner's private dashboard, which is reachable only from the owner's own devices.

